

HUMAN SCIENCES GLOBAL POLICY SEMINAR SERIES

Sustainability and International Development

Friday 18th February, 5.00 – 6.30pm.

The inaugural Human Sciences Global Policy seminar will focus on sustainability and International Development

Experts from the field of International Development discuss how international development and sustainable development can be integrated.

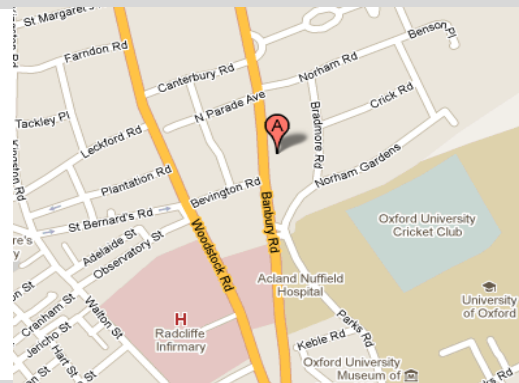

The seminar will run from 5.00 – 6.30pm and will be followed by a wine reception.

Tickets are free but must be booked in advance from info@brite-green.co.uk

Sustainability and International Development

Friday 18th February

The Human Sciences Institute,
The Pauling Centre
58a Banbury Road
Oxford
OX2 6QS

Hilary Term, 2011

International Development

Experts from the field of International Development discuss effective approaches

Trinity Term, 2011

Communicating sustainability in retail

Tescos, Forum for the Future and BSI discuss how sustainability issues should be communicated to consumers

SUPPORTED BY

www.brite-green.co.uk